The warranty for work quality shall be related to all delivered equipment and systems regardless of the fact whether they have been manufactured in accordance with the Contractor's documentation or with any other taken-over documentation.

The Ordering Party's consent to project design or to any other design shall not deprive the Contractor of his liability for work quality.

The decision on the claim for liability for defects of goods, as well as the decision on the way how defects shall be removed, shall solely pertain to the Ordering Party. In a case that the Ordering Party does not even subsequently decide on the claim for defects, it shall be conceived that by posting the Claim Records the claim for defect removal is raised. However, the Ordering Party is always and regardless of seriousness of the Contract breaching entitled to ask to remove defects:
